EASTER AT HOT SPRINGS.

Outdoor Recreations in Place of Bridge and Late Suppers in Holy Week.

HOT SPRINGS, Va., April 6.—Though Holy Week has drawn many tourists to the Virginia Hot Springs there has been a noticeable cessation of gaiety, and outdoor recreations have taken the place of bridge and late suppers. Everybody who has not played golf has wanted to ride and drive, and for days all available horses and carriages have been in use.

Mrs. Tracy Dows of New York was the first to adopt the yasmak as a toilet accessory here this week, and other women have taken up the fad. It is an adaptation in a shorter length of the long veil worn by Egyptian women, which covers the mouth and chin and allows only the eyes to be seen. It leaves the face and neck from spring winds in the mountain tramping the women are doing in connection with taking the cure.

Many women are regularly walking five miles a day, and there is a constant demand at the small shops for walking sticks, without which no one starts out for a serious climb. Several women, including Mrs. Charles Steele of New York, who left some days ago, have carried folding alpenstocks which they brought from Switzerland. These can be made into camp stools whenever a rest is desired.

The scales are resorted to daily after a tramp and bath, for everybody wants either to gain or to lose flesh. With people having the latter ambition standing for twenty minutes after eating is practiced.

Golf is filling the day for many of the men. Among those who make a bee line for the links immediately after breakfast and scarcely come in for meals are Edward Swift and T. Philip Swift, who with Mrs. Swift came in their private car from Chicago the first of the week; Edward L. Pruyn of Albany, Hollis Hummel of Boston, H. W. Chappell and W. R. Chappell of New York, James N. Mohr of Philadelphia and E. A. Cudaby, Jr., of Chicago. The temperate greens are still being used, as the ground has not yet dried out thoroughly after the spring rains.

Malcolm W. Whitman, national champion some years ago in outdoor tennis, came down the first of the week, but was unexpectedly obliged to return home, to the disappointment of those who were expecting to see some good play. Two new courts are being made on the old practice green near the golf house. Tennis is gaining in popularity here each year, and the new courts will increase the number to six.

Mrs. William Everard Strong of New York was joined this week by her son-in-law, Morton Gage of the Fifth Dragon Guards, Ireland, who distinguished himself in the Boer war. He will return with her to New York the last of the month.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Pruyn, Edward L. Pruyn and Mrs. S. L. Seldon of Albany after spending the winter at Jekyll Island have stopped for a course of the baths on their way north.

Mrs. Melville E. Ingalls spent a few days here this week and then went on to Washington to spend Easter with Mr. Ingalls and Miss Gladys Ingalls. Miss Abbie Barnard, who came with her husband, and Mrs. George Ingalls of Chicago and Mrs. Charles Hinkle and Miss Marie Hinkle of Cincinnati.

Col. and Mrs. A. B. Dick of Chicago, who came here from Palm Beach, were met at the Homestead by their sons Sheldon and Edison Dick, students at Yale and the Westminster School, who are here for the Easter vacation.

Among other students spending the spring vacation here are a dozen or more young girls from Miss Spence's school. They include Miss Susan McCook, who is here with Mrs. John McCook; Miss Caroline, who came with Mrs. G. M. Carleton; Miss Alice De Lamar and Miss Jeanie Smith. Miss Mary Appleton and Miss Carol Hackstaff of New York and Miss Jane Akers of Louisville. The last three are guests of Miss Prudence Story at The Pillars, which Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Story have opened for Easter. Besides a hostful of younger guests they have with them Mrs. Mary Appleton, Miss Mai Watson and Messrs. Walter Watson, E. H. McCullough and George S. Hoyt of New York.

Gen. and Mrs. Edward P. Meaney of Morristown are entertaining at St. Louis, Mo., the brothers of St. Louis, at the Homestead. H. B. will go with them Monday to New York, where they will
